

IC introduces new Bona Antique

As a part in being unique a lot of parquet manufacturers develop new trendy look for their pre finished surfaces. As a part of this we develop new products that could give our customers the little extra.

Bona Antique product range is one of these products. This is a range of products that when applied on woods like oak will give an old antique look. By applying this product directly on bare wood we will create a reaction that will give the surface a unique old antique look. By controlling the reaction we can create darker or lighter look.

The variation possibilities for our customers are huge as it could be combined with oils or normal coatings. It could as well be combined with stains to give further combinations and possibilities. As seen on the picture the left surface is an example of our normal coated antique look on oak and the right side is an example of the antique look in combination with white stains applied in the pores.
